Dear Ishvinder,

Thank you for your letter of [redacted]

Under the immigration delegations the delegated decision makers have the authority to make certain ministerial intervention decisions on behalf of the Associate Minister of Immigration.

I have carefully considered your representations. I have decided to cancel Mr [redacted] deportation liability and grant him a nine-month visitor visa under section 61 of the Immigration Act 2009, subject to him providing evidence that his partne[redacted] supports the request. The grant of this visa will allo[redacted] to test his eligibility for further visas based on his partnership with [redacted].

[redacted]must request this visa from Immigration New Zealand (INZ) within one month of the date of this letter. A copy of this letter must be included with the request. He must provide a Form for Partners Supporting Partnership-Based Temporary Entry Applications, completed by [redacted]. Medical and police certificates are not required as his health and character will not be assessed on this occasion.

If the requirements set out above are not met the request may be refused. If the request is approved in principle, the fee for a visitor visa under section 61 must be paid.

If [redacted] applies for a further visa based on his relationship with [redacted]it will be up to INZ to assess whether he should be granted one. I do not guarantee the outcome of any future applications, which will be assessed against the relevant immigration instructions.

I have made this decision based on the information provided to me. INZ should be advised of any further information or material change in circumstances that may be relevant to this decision, and that information may be referred to me so I can consider its effect on my decision.

Yours sincerely,

[redacted]
